"ALL NIGHT LONG."

By Mack Sennett ✓

Harry Hall goes to sleep at the theatre and his wife goes home without him. Harry wakes up and finds a burglar making off with the box office receipts. He recognizes him as his sergeant in France, and they recall the time when the sergeant took Harry to dinner at his girl's house and now the girl, Nanette Burdundy, flirted with Harry. For revenge, the sergeant, sent him on a solitary expedition at night into No Man's Land. Escaping harm, the sergeant posts Harry at Suicide Post, where he saves the Colonel's life. After that Harry was made a lieutenant and he got the girl while the sergeant got the guard-house. At the end of their reflection, the police arrive at the theatre, and the burglar tries to place the blame on Harry. In the ensuing fight they both escape and Harry takes the sergeant home, and shows him the baby they named after him.
